

ABSTRACT

A method for outfitting a vessel such as a water ship for a particular mission includes maneuvering the vessel toward a mission module, capturing the mission module with the vessel, and coupling the mission module to the vessel. Such method
5 allows one to interchange mission modules, and thus outfit a vessel for different missions, quickly and easily.